

'Lateral entry will not be allowed to become a free pass for entry into MBBS'

Common foundational courses based on medical pluralism will be followed by core courses focused on specific systems, and electives that encourage bridging across systems. Graduates from other medical disciplines such as nursing, dental etc., will also be allowed lateral entry into the MBBS course," states the draft policy.

entry but after that would only have to complete the remaining years of the course. If a nursing candidate were to seek lateral entry after two years, he or she would first have to clear NEET and then do the remaining three years (if the tenure of the MBBS course is five years).

draft policy states that "in line with the spirit of providing autonomy to educational institutions... fees for professional education courses will be left to the management of educational institutions, both public and private," adding that institutions would have to fulfil their social obligations and provide scholarships to students from the socially and economically weaker sections of society. Yet, it also sets the goal of improving "access to healthcare education for rural students, and lowering the cost of education". The proposed common exit exam for MBBS should also serve as the entrance exam for post-graduate programmes. The draft suggests, "This exit examination will be administered at the end of the fourth year of the MBBS so that students are relieved of the burden of studying for a separate, competitive entrance examinations at the end of their residency period. With the entrance examination out of the way they can spend their residency period acquiring valuable skills and competence," states the draft adding that similar common exit examinations could be conducted for dental education and other disciplines too.

Citing tremendous shortage of professionals in the health sector, the draft policy suggests the setting up of a separate committee to work out a detailed transformation plan for the sector. Stating that professional education must be separated from professional practice, the draft policy envisages converting the Medical Council of India (MCI) and councils for dentistry and nursing into professional standard setting bodies that could also provide a curriculum framework, against which educational institutions will prepare their own curricula. "All institutions offering professional education will also be mandatorily accredited once every 5 years, by accreditation agencies empaneled by National Assessment and Accreditation Council (NAAC) in consultation with the professional councils. Independent accreditation agencies with the necessary mandate to accredit all professional streams of education will be empaneled," states the draft.

You May Live 2 Yrs More If India Meets Its Green Goals

As India fights alarming air pollution that claims thousands of lives annually, there is a more acute need than ever before for the rigorous implementation of preventive regulations. Ahead of World Environment Day today, which has air pollution as its theme this year, the Centre for Science and Environment compiled a snapshot of the threat that air and water pollution poses for India and its people

Effluents Pollution Not Helping Matters

- Grossly polluting industries, which account for 10% of total emissions, discharge more than 100 kilolitres of wastewater per day and/or hazardous chemicals, are a big source of water pollution. UP, Haryana, Andhra and Gujarat alone have 8% of all such industries. In fact, since 2011, there's been a 136% increase in number of grossly polluting industries

Brazilian with 1kg cocaine in stomach held in Mum airport

Mumbai: A 24-year-old Brazilian has been arrested from the international airport for smuggling in around 1 kg of cocaine, worth Rs 6 crore, hiding it inside his body. According to sources in the Narcotic Control Bureau (NCB), 910 grams of the contraband was stuffed into 75 capsules and swallowed by Jhonatan Parreira before he flew to Mumbai from Brazil.

Calling green warriors for Earth Care Awards

India is well-poised to fulfil its pre-2020 climate commitment. However, it still needs to stay ahead of the game by revising its post-2020 national climate action target under Paris Agreement. Limiting warming to agreed-upon goal of 1.5°C calls for major and immediate action.
